

SEMDA Announces Date for 2013 Conference

ATLANTA, GA, May 14, 2012 – The Southeastern Medical Device Association's (SEMDA) 7th annual conference will take place on February 19-20, 2013. Recognized as the premier gathering for the Southeast medical device industry, the conference balances presentations by medical device companies to investors with educational programs, partnering and networking opportunities.

Art Spalding, Founder of TAMM Net, Inc., has been named as Chairman of the 2013 Conference, and Angela Sinton, Senior Partner at Medical Device Marketing, will serve as Vice Chairman.

The Conference will again be held at the Georgia Tech Global Learning Center, a midtown Atlanta conference facility that offers a professional learning environment with room for presentations and meetings, complemented by state-of-the-art technology capabilities.

The SEMDA Conference is specifically designed to meet the needs of medical device industry professionals and brings together professionals from throughout the Southeast. Other highlights will include:

- Keynote presentations from industry leaders
- Presentations from some of the region's top existing and emerging medical device companies
- Workshops on a variety of topics including critical industry issues
- Panel discussions by investors and business development professionals, as well as a CEO Roundtable
- Numerous industry networking opportunities
